Meteorological Services and Supporting Research

Closing Remarks

Mr. Williamson reviewed the goal and objectives of the workshop. He noted that in spite of the challenges inherent in the subject of ATD models, considerable progress had been made. This progress was due almost entirely to the active involvement of the participants, with the help of the moderators, panelists, and session co-chairs. Mr. Williamson committed to establishing a joint action group to continue a detailed review and assessment of models. He closed by thanking all participants for making the workshop a success.
